Although people usually know what the word means, it sometimes has no exact translation. It's not surprising, because the idea of home is different from country to country, and from person to person. Alex turned his computer off and lay down on his bed. He grabbed the packet of chewing gum that was lying on the floor, popped (塞) one in his mouth and chewed it hard.

He was bored. Today was Saturday and Steve, his best friend, was working as the newspaper boy again. Alex turned round and noticed the new skateboard under his desk that he'd won at his last skate contest. He decided to ride it to the skate shop, because the kids there would buy it from him immediately.

He got up, grabbed his skateboard, opened the front door and rode away. He began to think of what he could buy with the money from selling the skateboard. He thought of the rock CDs. After a while he'd sell them to his friends, and with that money, he'd be able to buy skateboarding books. He'd sell those books back to Steve, and buy a few DVDs. Later he'd sell the DVDs to his elder brother's girlfriend! He could then get the ice—skating video, sell it to his small sister and...

He skated along, a smile on his face, thinking of all the good things when he noticed a small bench on the side of the street. He just wanted to do one little trick on the skateboard, before
